

I own a cellular phone. I am being billed for recurring messages from a fax machine that does not have caller ID. The cellular carrier has stated it cannot trace the incoming call and that I should change my phone number. All I would like to do is inform the business that they are not reaching their desired destination. This is week three of this odd occurrence and August 23,2004 I received 20 messages,i.e. 20 valuable minutes due to a business fax machine.
